

Chasmanthium 'River Mist'

GENERAL DESCRIPTION

This loosely tufted, spreading grass has lovely, arching, green and white variegated foliage with unique, sparkling white seed heads that hang in loose clusters.

USES

A showy grass suitable as a specimen in beds, borders and containers, it also mixes well with others in combination plantings. Although it is deciduous, the foliage and very attractive seed heads remain long into the winter for additional seasonal interest. The flowering stems are an unusual look in cut and dried flower arrangements.

GARDENER TIPS

- Plant in fertile, moist, but well-drained soil.
- Place in full sun or partial shade.
- Cut back in late winter or very early spring before new growth begins.
